Best of Just Thinking -- A while back, I told you that Miz Savon had given me a satellite radio for the car. She is probably having second thoughts about doing that as I listen to the hits from the 50's and the 60's.

I have often heard it said that the music was so much better back then because you could "understand the words". We were driving up to the campground the other afternoon and I was listening to these stations and heard such outstanding lyrics as "Ah weema wak"; "Shaboom, shaboom"; "Ooop, oop, Alley Oop"; and those immortal words, "Splish, splash, I was taking a bath (Too Much Information)". Yes we could understand the words, but to this day, I have no idea what some of them mean. However, these song lyrics are embedded in my mind from my school days and my days as a disc jockey. Yes, Virginia, I was a once a disc jockey, even though we preferred to be referred to as "On-Air Personalities".

While these golden oldies may be laughed at by later generations, at least our songs were not filled with words that have to be "bleeped" out for civil audiences. Back then, we didn't even have bleepers or time delays; if a song had marginal words or meanings; they simply were not played on some stations. If an on-air personality used these words, even by accident, he was suspended or fired on the spot.

We see people today with bracelets and bumper stickers with "WWJD". What Would Jesus Do? I really don't know what Jesus would do when people used these words; but I know what my Mom would have done. I would have been spitting Ivory Soap out of my mouth for an hour. The Bible cautions us, "Careless words stab like a sword, but wise words bring healing." (Proverbs 12:18 NCV)

By the way, do any of you have the faintest idea of what "Bee bop aloo bop a biff bam boom" means? Oh well, we'll see you in Sunday School and Church.

Finally--Speaking of disc jockeys; here's an old Deejay story

A guy found a penguin and showed him to a policeman. The policeman said, "Take that penguin to the zoo, now." Next day the policeman sees the man with the penguin again.

The policeman stops the guy and says, I told you yesterday to take the penguin to the Zoo, what on earth are you doing with the penguin in your truck again?"

The guy says, "What is there to do? Yesterday I took him to the zoo and today I'm taking him to the movies."
